coast road
to the iconic town of Tenby to stroll the picturesque narrow streets

Narberth is a treasure chest of galleries and artisan makers.

Start at the Metal Press for pewter and silver-plated jewellery from casts of shells and plants from around Pembrokeshire. Browse at your leisure in the two-storey Georgian Golden Sheaf Crafts Council-approved gallery, or for new and established contemporary Welsh artists, visit the Oriol Q Gallery.

As you head out of Narberth, don't miss the individual ceramics of Bryony and Simon Rich, from fumed copper raku to hand-painted lusterware. On the way to Saundersfoot, branch off at Kilgetty to Amroth, where Emily's Funky Knits and Wool Shop at Amroth Bay Holidays offers something completely different in knitwear and accessories. Follow the coast road to the iconic town of Tenby to stroll the picturesque narrow streets and discover a wealth of artistic talent.

Tenby Museum and Gallery on Castle Hill houses two galleries: a permanent exhibition of well-known artists such as John Piper and Gwen John as well as changing exhibitions. Leave the harbour area, head through Tudor Square towards the 'Five Arches' and turn into Upper Frog St to Llewellyn's Gallery, where fine art photographer Gary offers a fascinating insight into his photographic world. Visit Gift of Glass studio on Trafalgar Road, where husband and wife team, David and Lucy specialise in lampworking taking glass-blowing to a new level. Follow on to the White Lion Street Gallery 'Art Matters' with original work by Welsh and British artists. Leaving Tenby, at Gumfreston, visit the Little Wedlock Gallery for the lively and varied work of mother and daughter artists Anne Gregson and Jo Davies, before journeying to the heart of pretty St Florence village for Pembrokeshire land and seascapes in the studio of watercolour artist Graham Hadlow. Follow on through Pembroke towards Castlemartin to The Golden Plover gallery at Warren where A.Shaun Kersey uses his unique techniques to create his figurative work on a contemporary scale.
