By Louise Rennison

I thoroughly enjoyed this laugh a minute book. It is full of wicked insights into the entertaining life of would be thespian Tallulah Casey.

Tallulah is the funny, sweet, Irish cousin of Georgia Nicholson and the book is written in a similar jokey style to the confessional books of Georgia but not in diary form. It contains the same humour with lots of references to snogging, love and body issues.

Louise Rennison has managed to get plenty of literary references into this engaging book.

I would recommend this book to teenagers and young adults …. and I think it could appeal to an even wider audience.
