Manually entered Comments:I have lived on Monkton Road for the last 45 years. In the last few years we take our lives into our own hands when my family and I try to cross into our drive. The amount of cars, vans, lorries and tractors passing by is at breaking point. The 20mph speed limit is ignored totally. traffic calming measures last a few weeks until they are worn away by the volume of traffic both day and night. What calming measures that are there are ignored and people continue to speed over them. Cars and vans continue to overtake ignoring the on coming traffic. The thought of another new access for the new traveller site being added to an already saturated road is quite unbelievable. Without the added traffic from the proposed traveller site Monkton Road is already a deathtrap. It is impossible for people to cross the road safely at present so to add another access and an increase in traffic would make the situation critical. The council need to do a detail study of the amount of traffic on the road.
